

NEWSPAPER FOE OF WM. LORIMER

Chicago Tribune Active in Its Crusade against Him.

FIRST HAD WHITE CONFESSION

Democratic Member of Illinois Legislature Sold Story of Jack-Pot Corruption Fund to Editor for $3,250.

Washington, July 25.—James Keeley, general manager of the Chicago Tribune, testifying before the senate committee which is investigating charges of corruption in the election of Senator Lorimer of Illinois, told of the efforts of that newspaper to expose the corrupt conditions prevailing at Springfield and to prove the charges of bribery in connection with Mr.
Lorimer's election.

The Tribune on April 20, 1910, published for the first time the alleged confession of William A. White, a Democratic member of the Illinois assembly, who admitted having received money to vote for Mr. Lorimer. Since that date the Tribune has been active in its crusade against Senator Lorimer.

In explaining how the Tribune obtained the White confession, Mr. Keeley said: "In the first week of March, 1910, my secretary told me that a labor man had called, and said that he had a tale of corruption in the legislature. I told him to return the next day as I was busy and could not see him; then, he came to me unbidden and said that he had a story to tell. I read the story and told him that if it could be substantiated and we could agree upon a price we would print it.
We sent out reporters and detectives, and spent about $20,000 in verifying its statements. I felt that it was more than a newspaper story and that it was my duty to submit it to the state's attorney, which I did about April 1, a month before its publication. I told White that he was a self-confessed law breaker, and he said that he would go to jail, if necessary. After investigating the story we felt that we had made out a prime facie case. We made a contract with White under which he was paid $3,250, and printed the story."

After the publication of the White confession, Mr. Keeley added, the Tribune continued its efforts to obtain more facts about the corruption at Springfield. He told how the Tribune submitted a list of questions designed to elicit information on this point to Edward E. Hines, president of the Edward Hines Lumber company, Roger Sullivan, Democratic national committeeman from Illinois, and E. S.
Conway, vice president of the W. W.
Kimball Piano company. Mr. Sullivan and Mr. Conway denied knowledge of the allegations of corruption, and Mr.
Hines declined to answer the questions and threatened the Tribune with a libel suit if it published anything damaging to his reputation.

"What was your attitude toward the investigation of Mr. Lorimer's election by the United States senate?" asked Mr. Marble.

"We desired a complete and thorough investigation. I tried to find out who contributed the money to the jack-pot at Springfield. I asked many persons and printed in the Tribune a notice of a reward for information."

The alleged attempt to purchase Senator Hopkins, Mr. Keeley said, took place in the St. Nicholas hotel at Springfield. His information on the subject had been obtained from Clifford Raymond, an editorial writer on the Tribune, who was formerly a legislative correspondent at Springfield, and from Representative Ira C. Copley, a member of congress from the Eleventh district of Illinois. According to his information Mr. Keeley said a fund of about $30,000 was sent to Springfield to purchase Democratic votes, but Speaker Shurtliff, of the Illinois assembly, and Roger Sullivan got wind of the proposed deal, and threatened to expose the members who had offered to sell their votes if they attempted to carry out the agreement.

GOMPERS PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Mitchell and Morrison Take Same Course Before Justice Wright.

Washington, July 25.—In lieu of formal answers to the contempt charges against them, Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison of the American Federation of Labor entered oral pleas of "not guilty" before Justice Wright of the district supreme court.

They also entered a plea of immunity under the statute of limitations and attacked the court for not having instituted the proceedings within the statutory time limit. Further hearing was postponed for ten days.

PEACE FOR THE U.S. UNION STRIKES AT BREAD TRUST

ALL ARE WILLING TO SIGN ARTICLES WITH UNCLE
SAM.

DISPOSITION MAY LEAD TO GEN-ERAL INTERNATIONAL
PEACE MOVEMENT.

Pres. Taft Would Like all Signatures on One Document for Disarmament.

Washington, July 25.—Signatures of all the parties to the negotiations for general arbitration treaties appended to one document would, it is said, greatly please President Taft and Secretary Knox. But the time is not yet ripe for such a great stride towards universal peace and disarmament.

Were America, Great Britain, France, Germany, Sweden and The Netherlands to sign one convention, such as was agreed upon at The Hague, the effect would be to prevent them from going to war with one another over any such issue as sphere of influence in Morocco or varying boundary lines in equatorial Africa.
Apparently they are willing to enter into special and separate treaties of arbitration with America, and it is the hope of the administration that in the end the beneficial workings of these special treaties will incline all the great powers to enter into life relations with one another, either through the medium of separate treaties or through the general signature of one common treaty.

Fight Against the Proposed Combine in New York.

GOVERNMENT MAY TAKE ACTION

Delegates from Fifty-Six Locals Are Organizing the Tri-State Anti-Bread Conference—Statement by an Official.

New York, July 25.—The Journeymen Bakers' union in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut are fighting against control of the bread business in New York city by any one corporation or combination. Delegates from fifty-six locals of the Bakers' union are organizing the tri-state anti-bread conference, which intends to fight an alleged attempt to control the trade and drive hundreds of small independent bakers out of business.

That the department of justice also has its eye on the proposed bread trust is indicated by a statement given out by Max Freund, representing the international organization of the Bakers' union. Freund's statement says:

"I was visited by a representative of the department of justice, who wanted to know if I had any evidence that the Sherman anti-trust law has been violated in the case of the trust concerns. I told him I was not well enough informed to say, and he will see the officers of the unions later. I hardly think this law is violated yet, but it will be if the proposed corporations, which have been fighting each other, is formed to control the trade.
That is what we are trying to prevent."

STAMBOUL FIRE SUBDUED

Two Square Miles of Turks' Capital Devastated—5,000 Homes Burned.

Constantinople, July 25.—The great conflagration continued for several hours, or until the flames were gotten under control, because there was no more fuel in their path. The disaster was the greatest since the fire in Pera, the European quarter, in 1870.

It is believed that the fire was the work of political incendiaries. From the square in front of the war ministry, east of the center of Stamboul, to the Sea of Marmora on the south practically nothing was left standing.
Two square miles of the city were devastated. It is estimated that over 5,000 houses were destroyed.

FATAL RUSH TO RIOT

Private Detectives in Serious Collision in Cleveland.

Automobile Crashes into Pole—Special Officers Club Citizens—Many Shots Fired.

Cleveland, O., July 25.—A fast flying automobile in which were four private detectives en route to the scene of a reported garment strikers' riot collided with a telephone pole here.
The four men—"Blacky" Snyder, B.
Elliott, S. Doering and E. J. McCarthy —were seriously injured. Snyder is expected to die.

Just prior to striking the pole the swerving automobile struck Ernestine Keller, eight years old, who was on the sidewalk, inflicting a severe scalp wound.

Less than five minutes after the accident another automobile loaded with strike detectives arrived on the scene, and it is asserted they at once began to wield clubs among the crowd that had collected. Before the city police reached the scene a half dozen persons had been clubbed, the special officers evidently misunderstanding the situation.

Earlier in the day over sixty shots were exchanged between strikers and guards in a riot. Two strikers were wounded and the police made many arrests.

START PHONE RATE WAR

Farmers' Protest Price Boost of Bell Company and Threaten to Quit.

Flint, Mich., July 25.—The farmers of Genesee county are stirred by the information from the Bell Telephone company that a uniform rate of $18 will be charged for county telephones after Aug. 1. They have been aroused to such an extent that arrangements have been made for a canvass throughout the county with petitions for the purpose of getting all the farmers to stand by a discontinuance of the telephone service unless the rate is maintained at $15 a year.

A meeting was held in this city with an attendance of seventy-five farmers and it was decided to issue an ultimatum to the company that they would not pay the increase. Every man at the meeting pledged himself to discontinue the telephone if the rate was increased.

OIL INSPECTION PAYS WELL

Balance of $8,525 Turned Over to State for Six Months.

Northville, Mich., July 25.—The quarterly report of State Oil Inspector Neal for the term ending June 30, 1911, shows the inspection of 4,780,120 gallons, 100 of which was condemned as dangerous and returned to the refineries.

The total fees collected were $9,- 637.97; interest, $92.28. There was paid out for salaries, office and traveling expenses, $7,299.18, leaving a net balance to turn into the state treasury of $2,430.17. This makes a total net balance for the first six months of $8,- 525.31. The department has investigated fifty-eight accidents resulting from the use of kerosene and gasoline, the majority of which were brought about through carelessness.

WANTS TO TRY IT

FINANCE MINISTER FIELDING
URGES A YEAR'S TEST OF RECIPROCITY.

BELIEVES NEW TARIFF SCHED-ULE WOULD BE GOOD THING FOR CANADA.

If Bad for the Nation it Can be Voted Out at Close of the Year Says Minister.

Ottawa, Ont., July 25.—Finance Minister Fielding urges a trial of reciprocity in a long statement published here today in which he declares that if the agreement proves unprofitable to Canada, it may be suspended at any time.

"There is nothing permanently binding about it," he urges, "as either country can withdraw at any time. I challenge the opposition to let it pass now. Then we will have an election in a year. If, as the opposition says, reciprocity will prove a bad thing for Canada, the people will have a year's test of it and will return the Conservatives to power to form a new government and cancel the reciprocity agreement."

"But reciprocity will prove a good thing for the whole country. It is a good thing for the Canadian manufacturer that we have achieved reciprocity without important concessions in manufactured articles. But let me give a word of advice to Canadian manufacturers who, needlessly alarmed, are opposing reciprocity. I believe that they are doing an injury to their own interests as well as those of Canada."

"If, perchance, these manufacturers succeeded in preventing a great new market being opened to the farmers of Canada, there will arise in the western country a storm cloud which will grow until the end will be a change in the fiscal policy of Canada, which is not now contemplated."

CANNON SOUNDS SCOUT REVEILLE AT CAMP SHERZER

Camp Sherzer, July 25.—This morning a small cannon announced sunrise at Camp Sherzer and this was thought a much more interesting way of being called than alarm clocks or the parental warning soaring up the family staircase.

Mr. Seton, who slept in town because his tent had not been ready at the camp, came out early, brought in Alfred Wortley's car, and exhibited to the Scouts his Indian dress, consisting of trousers and vest, etc. Black Wolf then demonstrated how to make a fire using as a handle an Indian relic he had found and greatly prized.
Black Wolf had also brought a small Indian bed, made of reeds woven together with rope. It was like a hammock placed on sticks and sets from four to six inches off from the ground on two sticks.

Black Wolf will probably hereafter stay in Camp Sherzer every night.
The Scouts are full of the most delightful anticipations, for Black Wolf has said that he wishes to try out at Camp Sherzer certain features of scouting which have lately been presented to his notice in other camps.

It is good news for the Scouts that the cook, who yesterday, in despair at satisfying Boy Scouts' appetites, was ready to resign, is going to stay by them to the end. The Scouts have turned in and helped him considerably today and this has contributed to harmony all around.

The Scouts spent the morning on the river in boats and canoes, but did not venture far from camp, because Black Wolf was expected momentarily to return and not a moment of his stay must be wasted.

FRIEND OF THE SCOUTS SPEAKS IN NORMAL HALL

Tells of Early Experience With Boys—Evening Lecture on Wild Animals, Their Haunts and Habits

He who is Black Wolf to the Boy Scouts of America, and Ernest Thompson Seton to the rest of the world arrived Monday afternoon on the 2:20 train and was met by the Ypsilanti Boy Scouts in a body, by whom he was escorted to the Normal, where at four o'clock he delivered a talk on the origin of the Boy Scout movement.

About ten years ago Mr. Seton accumulated about 150 acres of land in Connecticut, and proceeded on this farm to make a home for wild animals. There was a lake on his domain and on the lawn sloping down to its border he erected a very realistic little Indian village. The gang of boys living about that neighborhood began at once to be unpleasantly active in the adornment of his gate and fences with "awful" pictures and even shot at his wild pets through the fencing. Encountering the boys one Saturday afternoon he suggested to them very amicably that, inasmuch as their treatment of his gate simply made necessary new coats of paint and as the gate had already received quite as many new coats as it needed, they should desist from these depredations. The boys laughed derisively and the next morning the pictures which glared at him from gate, posts, fences, trees and rocks partook even more generously of lurid portraiture than on previous occasions.

It was then that Mr. Seton put into action a scheme which had been simmering in his mind for many years.
In 1898 he had discussed it with Rudyard Kipling, and his prompt endorsement and encouragement have been like a prophecy. Accordingly at this juncture Mr. Seton went to the school near and invited the boys over ten to come to his farm Friday night and camp with him until Monday morning.
He announced that there would be grand things to eat, there would be canoes and fishing and all the fun of exploring the nice little Indian village. All a boy would have to furnish would be two blankets and guns, tobacco, anything alcoholic would be prohibited. Having given his invitation, Mr. Seton waited for the answer.
It was an outburst of—dead silence.
He repeated his invitation. Not a squeak. He asked them individually, and to this there were head-shakings in assent.

Elaborate preparations were made for the boys. A cook was engaged, provisions brought in readiness, the whole place set in attractive order.
Four o'clock, the appointed hour, came, but no boys. The skeptical cook was openly derisive of the boys' intentions.
But it was not five o'clock before boys began appearing—not the group of 18 for whom the camp was provisioned, but 42! "Say, mister, can we holler?" was the first remark of the visitors, and upon his ready affirmative, there was such yelling that people two miles away heard without difficulty. "Can we go in the lake?" was the next question, and "Yes" was answered to this with alacrity, for boys in water can do small damage to the landscape, which the boys' explorations had quite threatened with demolition. Supper time came and those boys gave themselves away at one eating with such address, such success, that they cleared away at one sitting all the accumulated provisions which were to have lasted till Monday. Never had Mr. Seton, never had his cook, seen such appetites, such accomplishments at the table. They ate till they were limp with the exercise.

Reduced to this beautiful frame of mind, they said, when he asked if he might tell them a story, "Bet yer life, Go ahead." An inimitable recounter, it is easy to imagine the state of joy to which he brought them with his tales, and when he ended with one of his best Indian stories, they were ready for his proposal to play that they were an Indian tribe and would now vote for a chief. Their feeling for politeness here came to the surface in an offer to make Mr. Seton their chief, but he said he was the medicine man and that their chief must be one of themselves. This left them free to urge each boy his own candidacy, his own peculiar fitness for the position, with an eloquence and positiveness which was rather disconcerting. Mr. Seton said, "What kid here can lick every other in the gang?" Tom Martin seemed instantly to be accorded this distinction. This Tom Martin was the worst boy Mr.
Seton had ever seen. The neighbors declared he was within three jumps of the penitentiary; he was the leader of the gang; and was the boy selected for the chief of this new band. Mr.
Seton talked to him alone on the responsibility of a leader, and the result of the whole matter was that this proved to be a turning-point in this lad's life. When Monday morning came, Mr. Seton had 42 staunch friends, and they are his yet. Every one of these boys has turned out well.

Mr. Seton asked his audience if they could see anything military in all this.
Once some men had objected to the military suggestiveness of the uniforms, but Mr. Seton had silenced him by recalling to his mind that uniforms on policemen, on street-car men, on Sisters of Mercy, were not objectionable—why then on Scouts?
"We have adopted the Indian custom," Mr. Seton said, "of giving honorable nicknames, and though this is not obligatory, it is advisable. Boys nearly always have nicknames and sometimes a disagreeable one bestowed by the street may be replaced by one full of meaning won through some Scout achievement. This he illustrated charmingly by telling of a boy who weighed 220 pounds and possessed a nickname which Mr. Seton would not tell for gold and through the ingenuity, the obedience, the observation displayed in a field game won the proudest of all scout names, "Gray Wolf." This means "scout" in the Indian tongue.
It was bestowed upon the lad in the presence of his family and all the country-side and with impressive ceremoniousness Mr. Seton wrote his former unlovely nickname on birch bark and burned it in the presence of the company.

Mr. Seton told of Baden-Powell's contribution to the Scout organization which has been that he bestowed the name upon them of Boy Scouts, he had said that each boy must have a bank account, because a man without a bank account is not the best type of a citizen, and that each scout is expected to do one kind act each day, but without telling of it. A Chicago man got lost in the fog in London. A boy came up with a lantern and asked if he might see this man across the street. On reaching the further side, the grateful Chicagoan put his hand mechanically into his pocket and offered the lad a tip. The boy said, "Thank you, sir. I am a Scout. We do not take tips. Good night," and left the Chicagoan to stare after him.
This man was so impressed that he offered to give the organization $1,000 a month till it got thoroughly organized and did so for some time.

"WILD ANIMALS I HAVE KNOWN"

The character of Ernest Thompson Seton's audience Monday evening at subject likewise of one of his best-his appeal. There was a liberal sprinkling of the khaki uniforms of the Boy Scouts. There were very many small boys with fathers and mothers and uncles and aunts in tow.
To these the occasion seemed to be long, rather than to the students and solitary citizen.

The subject of Mr. Seton's talk was "Wild Animals I Have Known," the danger, the white spot showing like loved books, but the scope of the talk was very different from the book. The favorite Molly Cottontail was thrown early on the screen and a little seven-year-old whispered "Razzygus" long before the little creatures got into the action of the story. He showed how stray incidents taken from one and another of the animals produce, when strung together, one of the tales he has given out. In this sense they are strictly true, while of course he cannot know that all this array of incidents and accidents occurred in the career of one certain individual.
Mr. Seton showed the baby rabbit following the mother in her flight from tracks are to him decipherable hieroglyphs—"Any other color would be as good to sit on," Mr. Seton observed, but just this whiteness is best for a beacon.

The methods Mr. Seton employs in the study of wild animals are fascinatating and are several in number. Their line of moose, for example. Wonglyphs; they tell him of peril run away from or succumbed to, of the dark tragedies of the busy night, of the agonized tactics of the pursued and the counter tactics of the persistent pursuer. Photographs have taught him much. From the finding of a single feather he has been able to construct a bird. But what his dog teaches him was perhaps the most entertaining fact he recounted. He sends his dog into the woods at night, knowing that by rightly interpreting his movements and his calls he can take the census of the woods. All the sharp, ejaculatory barks, all the ten-

MAY THE PRESIDENT'S RECIPRO-CITY HOPES BE REALIZED.

President Taft has accomplished a signal victory, personally, in succeeding in putting through the Reciprocity Treaty,—as we understand, practically as originally drafted. If the Canadian Parliament now adopts the treaty, it will become binding.

We have had misgivings from the outset that it would operate to the damage of the farmers occupying that belt of states along our northern border adjoining Canada. We still have these misgivings. The President is reported as saying from his summer home, "To those who oppose the bill on the ground that it will do harm to the farmers, we can only say that we, who have supported the passage of the bill, look forward to the test of the actual operation of the reciprocity agreement to disprove their prophecies and to allay their fears."

We have not opposed the treaty in its entirety, but we have criticized that portion of the bill which provided the free schedule of the farmers' products as an unfair provision, as to the agricultural class. And so we hope the president's prophecies may be fulfilled. We hope it may not work a loss to the farmers, for they are just beginning to come into their own.

We hope that vast empire of rich, Canadian land, which by this treaty is given the markets free which the United States has been a century building up, may not operate to the damage of the farmers who have built up and improved the lands on this side of the line, so that they are worth today two or three times at least as much as similar lands across the border in Canada. We hope our fears that, to throw these two classes of land of such widely varying values into competition will injure American land values, may prove to be not well founded.

We hope that the standing difference in the price of wheat between Minneapolis and Winnipeg of ten cents a bushel may in reality simply represent the cost of transportation. But we are very fearful that it does not represent simply the cost of transportation. If it does not, then we hope that the cheap wheat grown on the rich, but cheap virgin soil of Canada and delivered to the Minneapolis mills in competition with the dearer wheat grown on the dearer and less fertile soil on this side of the line may not work a damage to the farmers. We wish the laboring man and the farmer might get his flour free of duty, the same as the miller gets the farmers' wheat.

We hope that our fears that the spreading virgin prairies, rich in grazing lands, and very cheap as compared with ours, may not flood the Chicago markets with beef, for the benefit of the beef trust, and enable the beef trust to use as a club in hammering down the prices for American beef the argument that they can buy more cheaply in Canada. We hope that the reports (which we have never seen disputed) that a mere error in letting cream slip into the free list in the recent Payne-Aldrich tariff law has benefited the single province of Ontario a million dollars already, is not true. And we hope that when milk and all dairy products go on the free list that it may not work disastrously to the dairying interests, so much needed for the conservation of the soil fertility of Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and in fact all of the border states.

We hope in other words that we have been all wrong on this phase of the proposed treaty, if it becomes an actual binding pact between the two countries. We have always wanted these two countries to be very friendly, and we hope this pact will operate to make them more and more so.

We hope they will then proceed speedily to build the deep waterway to the sea, so that Detroit and all the first-class lake and river ports, from the Great Lakes to the sea, may in practical reality be seaports and that all this great northern zone may profit by water transportation, which costs but one-fifth as much as rail.

And, if the President's greater progress in the greater problem and policy of world-wide peace enables us to convert the cost of preparedness for war into the construction of internal waterways, we can go forward at a tremendous pace without feeling the cost.

Changing Hospital Character.

The question in hospitals has gradually become not "Is this patient poor enough to be admitted to the hospital?" but "Is he ill enough, or is his illness of the kind to require the special services which the hospital is organized to render?"—British Medical Journal.

CONSERVATION OF GAME IS NOW A PROBLEM FOR THE NATION

Automobile and Aeroplane Used in Hunting.

Only a Little More Than 2,000 Buffaloes Left.

EVERY year the biological survey makes a report covering the progress of game protection in the United States. The reports mark a steady progress in the movement for the increase of game by propagation and the establishment of game preserves. This year's report, just published, is made by T. S. Palmer and Henry Oldys. They relate that the increased popularity of the automobile by hunters was marked, and the possibility of utilizing the aeroplane in duck shooting was demonstrated by an experiment in southern California last November. So far as is known, this was the first attempt made to use the aeroplane in shooting game.

Another innovation was frowned upon when a Maine court imposed a fine upon a nonresident for using one of the recently invented silencers on his rifle while out after deer. This was the first conviction in any court for this new offense. Another important court decision was that of the supreme court of Pennsylvania prohibiting the use of automatic guns. In Pennsylvania also the law prohibiting the possession of firearms by aliens was upheld in the lower courts, and in consequence the disarming of aliens has made rapid progress.

A count taken by the American Bison society shows a total of 2,108 pure blood buffalo in North America as compared with 1,917 at the date of the last census, made in 1908. Of these 1,007 are in captivity in the United States, 626 are in captivity in Canada and 475 are wild. The corresponding figures for 1908 were 1,116, 476 and 325. The decrease in the number in the United States was caused by the large purchases made by the Canadian government. The total number of buffalo has, however, increased by nearly 200.

The largest herds in private hands are now those of the Soldiers' Creek park at Belvidere, Kan.; the remainder of the Pablo herd at Ronan, Mont.; the Blue Mountain Forest association herd at Newport, N. H.; the Lillie herd at Pawnee, Okla.; the Phillips herd at Pierre, S. D.; the Goodnight herd at Goodnight, Tex., and the Dooley herd on Antelope island, in Great Salt lake. The outlaw buffalo belonging to Michel Pablo, which have thus far defied all attempts at capture, are supposed to number about seventy-five. It was announced in the autumn that a hunt would be organized by the owner of the herd. The state warden immediately took steps to prevent the hunt under the provisions of an old Montana law prohibiting the killing of buffalo at any time in the state.

Waterfowl and Woods Game.

From the gunner's viewpoint the waterfowl season was not satisfactory last year, but from the standpoint of the game conservationists it seems to have been very favorable. On the Atlantic coast the number of canvasbacks and redheads was greater than usual in the Long Island bays and on the Massachusetts coast, but much smaller than usual on the Susquehanna flats and Currituck sound, where these species are usually abundant. Canvasbacks are reported as numerous and increasing on Cayuga lake, central New York, where they were very scarce a dozen years ago.

Introduced pheasants seem to have held their own in sections where they have become established and in some instances show an increase. In the region around Buffalo, N. Y., where shooting is permitted for a short season in the fall and where 15,000, it is estimated, were killed in 1908, the stock does not seem to have been diminished. In the Genesee valley and in the region around Canandaigua pheasants have become quite numerous. In Massachusetts the birds seem to be holding their own, and the same is true of Ohio.

In no place where they have been liberated have Hungarian partridges yet become fully established, and in several regions where large sums have been spent in the attempted acclimatization of these birds they are reported to have disappeared through climatic or other causes. Other foreign game birds have practically all disappeared from the regions where they have been liberated.

Indiana bought and distributed 8,000 partridges and New Jersey 2,000 partridges and 4,000 English ringneck pheasants during the year; Missouri arranged for the purchase and distribution of 4,000 partridges; California liberated 2,400 partridges in thirty-nine counties; Iowa arranged for the purchase of 5,000 pairs of partridges to be liberated early in 1911; Idaho completed the distribution of 1,000 pheasants bought in 1909; Louisiana in the fall of 1910 bought 120 pheasants for distribution throughout the state and liberation on the state game preserve in Caldwell parish, and Colorado placed twenty-five pairs of partridges in nine counties and began the distribution of 2,000 pheasants.

Oklahoma and Iowa distributed 20,075 and 6,265 peasant eggs, respectively, to farmers for hatching and later liberation of the resulting broods. Iowa also arranged for the purchase and distribution of adult pheasants. South Dakota began an experiment with 200 or 300 pairs of pheasants and a few partridges, and Vermont gave much consideration to restocking the state with pheasants, wild turkeys and Hungarian partridges, the last being regarded less favorably. A few partridges were turned out by private organizations in New York, and 100 partridges were planted in Mississippi and Tennessee by an enthusiastic sportsman.

Results of Experiments.

It is yet too early to determine the outcome of most of these experimental measures, though negative results appear to have followed the liberation of partridges in New Jersey, Mississippi and Tennessee. During the year, however, it has developed that the planting of 1,600 pheasants in Kansas three or four years ago has been entirely barren of results and that of nearly 10,000 partridges liberated in Connecticut in 1908 and 1909 about 170 broods remained in the fall of 1909, which have since diminished and were probably finally destroyed by the severe weather of December, 1910. In the case of the Connecticut partridges, the fact that shooting was prohibited for only one season largely accounts for their disappearance.

In Indiana pheasants, which have been introduced for twelve or thirteen years, have yielded only fair results, while through the last few years' introduction of Hungarian partridges there are, according to a recent estimate, 10,000 of these birds on the 160 preserves created by contracts with farmers. Pheasants have increased in New Jersey as the result of three years' planting, and partridges in Nebraska from 124 pairs put out by the state in 1907 augmented by $1,000 worth liberated by ranchers early in 1909. Chinese pheasants, introduced in Idaho in 1908 and 1909, have become established wherever fed and otherwise cared for. Delaware shows only negative results from 100 pairs of partridges distributed in 1909.

The importation of foreign birds and mammals shows a slight increase. One of the largest single shipments ever reported came into New York from Hamburg in a vessel which brought 11,661 canaries and other nongame birds in one lot consigned to a New York importer. The chief importations of mammals were Japanese dancing mice and monkeys of various species. Two mongooses from Havana were denied admission. The game protection legislation in 1910, though small in laws passed, included several important acts. Only two retrograde measures are noted—the opening of a season on robins, blackbirds and gulls in Louisiana and the permitting of dove shooting in July in Mississippi.

RESOLUTIONS

Whereas, The Supreme Ruler of the Universe has removed by death our beloved Brother Arlington Quinn, Therefore, be it

Resolved, That in the death of our brother the order mourns the loss of a most estimable brother, one who has always been faithful,

Resolved, That while it is hard to become reconciled to the fact we shall no more behold his face or hear his voice in our order yet we bow our wills to him who doeth all things for the best, and tender to the sister of our deceased brother our sincerest sympathy in this, her hour of great bereavement, and trust she may look to Him who rules over all for consolation of strength;

Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be sent the sister, also be furnished the local papers for publication.

PYTHIAN SISTERS.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

ALEXANDER AFTER COOMBS' RECORD

Phillies' Star Pitcher Has Lofty Ambition First Year in League.

EXPECTS TO BE GREATEST EVER

Admits That He Is Learning More About Art of Twirling With Every Game—Players Say He Never Knows When to Quit.

Grover Cleveland Alexander, affectionately termed Alexander the Great by the baseball fans, has an ambition so great that the baseball world is due for a sensation if he succeeds in achieving it.

The big Nebraskan is a modest sort of chap and has but little to say in regard to himself or his ability to twirl. Alex's general expression is: "Well, I don't mind a little work if Charley wants men to work overtime. He is the boss, and I'll do whatever he says."

But down deep in his heart Alexander has a desire to eclipse the record made by Jack Coombs last season.

ALEXANDER, PHILLIES' CRACK YOUNG TWIRLER.

when the Athletics' twirler won thirty-one games, breaking the local Philadelphia record.

Alex does not like to talk about it and hardly dares hope that he will be successful, but he has informed Manager Dooan that he can work every other day if the team needs a few victories.

One morning recently while the big twirler was seated in the clubhouse he turned to a reporter and said, "Say, how many games did this fellow Jack Coombs win last summer?"

He was told thirty-one, and Alex said: "Well, I have eighteen now, and the season is mighty young. Gee, I would give anything to beat that record, and I think I might if I am worked enough."

"Wouldn't it be great if I could break in with a record like that? But at that I don't care and won't ask to be worked out of turn if the other fellows are going good and we win the games."

"They always worked me lots up at Syracuse, and I did not get going until the middle of the season. I never went so well this early in the season, and I generally get better as the season progresses."

"I have learned a lot since I've been with the Phillies. Dooan and Moran and all the players teach me something new all the time. Some of the other pitchers who have been in the game for a long time have been good to me in this way, and it all helps."

No one is stronger for the big, red haired chap than Manager Dooan, and it is not simply because he is pulling the team. Charley likes nerve, and if Alex were with another club the Philie manager would still think the same of him.

Dooan is now nursing Alexander carefully, but at the same time has lots of fun kidding "Dode," as Alexander is known in St. Paul, Neb., about needing more work.

Prior to the game with Boston recently Alexander warmed up for at least three-quarters of an hour and then came in to the bench and said: "Does any one want to field a few bunts? I need a little batting practice."

One of the players said: "Come on; sit down and take a rest. Don't you ever get tired?"

"What's the use? A fellow has to have work," grinned the big fellow. Dooan was seated on the bench and, with a wink to the other players, called out:

"Pretty near time you got out there and warmed up a little, Alex. You know a little bit of work won't hurt you."

"I know it, Charley, but I am in pretty good shape at present."

The fiery topped leader of the Phillies set back and took a hearty laugh. "You can't beat him," he said. "He is the funniest kid I ever saw. The more he works the better he likes it. He never seems to tire."

At present he tips the beam at 173 pounds, and he has not been under 170 nor over 175 pounds since the start of the season.

I had such severe pains across the small of my back that I could scarcely stoop or lift and none of the remedies I tried brought me more than temporary relief. Often it was difficult for me to get up from a sitting position on account of sharp twinges through my body. I was also troubled by painful passages of the kidney secretions. Upon using Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Weinmann-Matthews Co.'s Drug Store, I soon found relief and before long I felt like a different person." (From statement given Dec., 1906.)

Shortly after noon he put a cloth saturated with turpentine around his throat and sat down by the gasoline stove to keep it warm. The cloth ignited and set his clothing on fire. Men who were near heard the screams and rushed into the house. They tore the burning clothing from the child's body but his neck and chest were badly burned. This morning he seemed to be resting easy and it is thought that he will recover.

tative yelps, all the straight-away baying Mr. Seton reproduced, to the wonder and joy of the audience.

Mr. Seton disabused the minds of his listeners of the prevalent belief that it is a strong aggressive male who leads the bands in wild life. The lean, wary experienced female is the one at the head of the line Mr. Seton has found in countless instances. The stag is found off toward the end of the line of moose, for example. Wonderful indeed were Mr. Seton's reproductions of the calls of the moose. The deep, reverberating call, vital and scorching, was a thrilling thing to hear.

That skunks are odious creatures at all times is another misconception which Mr. Seton replaced with interesting tales of his 20 pet skunks. The offensive odor is sometimes never given out by a skunk if properly handled. One which he had had about the house for a long time never emitted it until set upon by a neighbor's cat. All weasels have a sac producing this musk, said Mr. Seton.

The birds in their migrations, flying by the light of their favorite October moon was another phase of wild life which Mr. Seton pictured most delightfully, and the sounds and calls which these great flocks of birds utter on their long nocturnal flights were wonderfully given by Mr. Seton.

Mr. Seton closed by telling of the shooting of a grand great moose many years ago. As he stood by its dead body, the lust of the chase died within him, never to be awakened again, and the activities of many years since have testified to his sincerity.

The lectures which Mr. Seton will deliver the remainder of the week are as follows, the first named to be given at four o'clock each day, the last at eight o'clock and illustrated:

Tuesday—"The Message of the Indian," and "The Personality of Wild Animals."

Wednesday—"The Indian as I Knew Him," and "Wild Animals at Home."

Thursday—"The Natural History of the Ten Commandments," and "New Adventures of Old Friends."

Friday—"Scout Games and Incidents," and "Animal Helpers."

The lecture on Friday afternoon is designed for Scouts especially and all the Scouts of the vicinity will be invited.
